Detailed report of the program

1. Outreach

On 10 July, the Department of Community Medicine organized a World Population Day and Health Awareness Program at Kilambakkam Bus Terminus to educate the public about population-related issues and the importance of health awareness.

The program began with an informative address by the Head of the Department (HOD) of Community Medicine, who spoke about the significance of World Population Day, the challenges associated with population growth, and the need for improving public health through awareness and responsible practices.

As part of the campaign, CRMI interns prepared and displayed informative placards carrying messages on population control, family planning, maternal and child health, and healthy living. Their efforts helped attract the attention of the public and effectively conveyed important health messages.

A rally was conducted by second-year MBBS students, who marched through the bus terminus while holding placards and raising awareness among commuters. The rally encouraged public participation and emphasized the importance of informed decision-making regarding health and population issues.

The awareness program also featured a street play (skit) performed by CRMI interns. The skit highlighted the consequences of uncontrolled population growth and the benefits of family planning, preventive healthcare, and community responsibility. Its engaging presentation helped communicate key messages in a simple and impactful manner.
