Detailed report of the program

On August 1, 2024, a social awareness program was conducted in commemoration of World Lung Cancer Day for 35 laborers at a leather factory. Dr. Sathish Kumar, Associate Professor of the Department of Respiratory Medicine at Tagore Medical College and Hospital, educated the participants about the harmful effects of tobacco smoking, the dangers of passive smoking, the signs and symptoms of lung cancer, the increased risk of lung cancer among smokers, and when to seek medical help. The session aimed to raise awareness and promote early detection of lung cancer. After the informative talk, a Q&A session was held, where Dr. Sathish Kumar addressed the participants' doubts and provided further clarity on various aspects of lung cancer and its prevention. The event concluded with positive feedback from the participants, who appreciated the valuable insights and the opportunity to learn from an expert in the field.
